

Briefing on Pocket Parks

- The Parks and Recreation Department Master Plan defines the types of parks, including Neighborhood Parks, District parks and Metropolitan Parks.
- Currently, the City has 85 Neighborhood parks (860 Acres), 11 District parks (663 Acres), and 10 Metropolitan parks (6496 Acres)
- Each type of park has a desired service radius and level of facility development.
- Traditionally, Neighborhood Parks are the backbone of the park system. They may be 2-10 acres in size, are intended to serve the community within a one mile radius, and contain a variety of informal recreational activities for children and families.
- Neighborhood Parks generally do not have facilities intended to attract larger crowds and events.
